As we come to the end of the half-term I am able to share with you our latest OFSTED report which has been published on our website today.

The report is full of praise for our students, staff and the whole school community. A few of the highlights are as follows:-

“An inclusive ethos is a central pillar of the school”

“Pupils were very well behaved interacting with respect and courtesy”

“Pupils develop to be thoughtful, caring and active citizens in school and the wider community”

“A well above average proportion of students attained GCSE 5 or above in English and mathematics in 2017”

“Pupils welfare is the priority for staff who are well trained and knowledgeable about potential risks”

“Pupils spoken to by inspectors were clear that they feel safe in school. They said that bullying in all its forms, would be dealt with swiftly”

“The schools robust assessment data shows that students studying ‘A’ levels are now making strong progress”

We are very pleased with the journey we have undertaken at All Saints and as a team we are embarking on our journey to outstanding as our school community goes from strength to strength. All that has been achieved here, is in partnership with our parents and as ever we are grateful for your unwavering support.

Wishing you and your family a peaceful and restful half-term.

Yours sincerely,

Clare Cantle
